Josh Reilly with wife
Maggie and son Ben.

Josh Reilly is co-owner and member of GREENFISH LLC.

Prior to founding GREENFISH LLC he worked as a Senior Scientist for the Hartz Mountain Corporation where he was the principal scientist in charge of development and testing of Aquatic Products.

He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Marine Biology from Roger Williams University, and a Master of Science Degree in Aquaculture from the University of Arkansas. Mr. Reilly began his career working in the AmeriCorps Program as a Fish Culturist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. He worked with over 15 endangered species of freshwater fish in the Western United States. He later worked for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, as an Aquarist in a private aquarium, as a University research and teaching assistant and as a Senior Scientist for Hartz.

His diverse background has allowed him to become an expert in fish nutrition, culture, and husbandry. He is a published scientific author in several journals including Aquaculture Research and the North American Journal of Aquaculture. He shares a patent for a composition for conditioning water used in aquariums (#6989109). Mr. Reilly maintains membership in a number of civic organizations and professional societies.

In 2007 he became part of GREENFISH LLC in order to market highly effective, environmentally responsible pond products to people who want to succeed in raising beautiful fish and protect the aquatic environment.
